PMIEF Thanks All Those Who Supported Its Mission in 2014

This past year you helped bring project management skills to over 9,000 children around the world. And that’s just a fraction of all that our supporters made possible. “We truly could not accomplish all of this without the support, generosity and time of our donors and volunteers. We look forward to another impactful year ahead spreading project management for social good,” said Mike DePrisco, PMI vice president of academic and educational programs and COO of the PMI Educational Foundation.

2014 Impact:

- Hundreds of teachers, in addition to more than 9,000 youth, such as students at the Center for Digital Inclusion in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, learned project management.
- Nine new grants provided funding to other like-minded nonprofit and non-governmental organizations, which enables PMIEF to advance its vision to bring project management into schools around the globe.
- Research was completed that identified ways in which project management education can be delivered in career-related educational programs in secondary schools. This research will be used to formulate new resources, as well as inform strategic direction.
- In 2014 alone, more than 16,000 no-cost resources were downloaded from www.pmief.org.
- Two new resources were created: The 21st Century Skills Map—Project Management for Learning connects project management skills, 21st-century skills and career pathways; and the Project Management Toolkit for Teachers™.
- Dozens of academic and professional development scholarships were awarded.
- A PMIEF/Dell partnership helped 100+ Irish nonprofit leaders acquire project management skills. This program will be replicated in other locations in 2015.

Thank you for being a part of our story and the stories of thousands of youth around the world. Your support, combined with that of other donors and volunteers, helps make PMIEF the strong, thriving organization it is today. Thank you!

Former PMI Communities and SIGs Donate To PMIEF!

With the close-out of the former PMI Communities of Practice, 15 former communities that had transitioned from being a PMI Specific Interest Group or College have decided to donate their remaining operational funds to the PMI Educational Foundation (PMIEF).

PMIEF will use these funds to support its educational programs as well as establish new scholarships that will live on in perpetuity through the creation of new permanent endowment funds. This means that from this point forward, each year, the interest earned from these new endowment funds will enable many individuals to receive scholarships. This is truly a wonderful way for communities to create a lasting legacy in support of building the project management workforce of the future and delivering value through knowledge!

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to the following for their generosity:

- Former PMI Automation Systems SIG
